Canadian advancing women’s rights in Russia

BY JULIUS MEINZITTER
For Low Times

It is no surprise that Susan Bazilli is using her extensive experience in women’s rights to assist Russian women. Bazilli’s work at MEERI’s annual conference was highly praised for its focus on gender issues.

Bazilli’s career began in 1985 when she was asked to join the Centre for Economic Rights in Africa (CERA), a non-profit organization dedicated to women’s rights.

In the late 1980s, Bazilli moved to South Africa, where she worked as a lawyer and later became the executive director of the South African Women’s Legal Centre (SAWLC). Her work focused on women’s rights and gender issues, and she was a vocal advocate for gender equality.

Bazilli later moved to Canada, where she continued her work as a lawyer and advocate for women’s rights. She has been a vocal critic of the Russian government’s treatment of women and has advocated for the rights of women in the country.

Bazilli’s efforts have been recognized by numerous organizations, including the United Nations Women’s Rights Committee, which awarded her the prestigious UN Women’s Rights Award in 2019.

Bazilli believes that women’s rights are fundamental to the progress of society and that they must be protected and respected. Her work has helped to raise awareness of the rights of women in Russia and has contributed to the advancement of women’s rights in the country.

Bazilli’s work has been recognized by numerous organizations, including the United Nations Women’s Rights Committee, which awarded her the prestigious UN Women’s Rights Award in 2019.

Bazilli believes that women’s rights are fundamental to the progress of society and that they must be protected and respected. Her work has helped to raise awareness of the rights of women in Russia and has contributed to the advancement of women’s rights in the country.

Bazilli’s work has been recognized by numerous organizations, including the United Nations Women’s Rights Committee, which awarded her the prestigious UN Women’s Rights Award in 2019.

Bazilli believes that women’s rights are fundamental to the progress of society and that they must be protected and respected. Her work has helped to raise awareness of the rights of women in Russia and has contributed to the advancement of women’s rights in the country.

Bazilli’s work has been recognized by numerous organizations, including the United Nations Women’s Rights Committee, which awarded her the prestigious UN Women’s Rights Award in 2019.

Bazilli believes that women’s rights are fundamental to the progress of society and that they must be protected and respected. Her work has helped to raise awareness of the rights of women in Russia and has contributed to the advancement of women’s rights in the country.

Bazilli’s work has been recognized by numerous organizations, including the United Nations Women’s Rights Committee, which awarded her the prestigious UN Women’s Rights Award in 2019.

Bazilli believes that women’s rights are fundamental to the progress of society and that they must be protected and respected. Her work has helped to raise awareness of the rights of women in Russia and has contributed to the advancement of women’s rights in the country.

Bazilli’s work has been recognized by numerous organizations, including the United Nations Women’s Rights Committee, which awarded her the prestigious UN Women’s Rights Award in 2019.

Bazilli believes that women’s rights are fundamental to the progress of society and that they must be protected and respected. Her work has helped to raise awareness of the rights of women in Russia and has contributed to the advancement of women’s rights in the country.